Haif Calf, $3.

This condensation of the "Dictionary of the Bible." has been made by Mr. William Aldis Wright, M. A., Librarion of Trinity College, Cambridge, under the direction and superintensence of Dr. William Smith. It is intended to satisfy tensence of Dr. William Smith. It is intended to satisfy tensence of Dr. William Smith. It is intended to satisfy the present in the property of the most recent Biblical studies in a form adapted for universal circulations. A Dictionary of the Bible, in some form or another, is indispensable for every family. The Divine, the Scholar, and all who desire to investigate thoroughly the various subjects connected with the Bible, and to make those controverses which are now exciting such deep and general interest must still have recourse to the larger Dictionary; but to students, to private families, and to the numerous class of persons who desire to arrive at results, simply, this Conciss Dictionary will, it is believed, supply all that is necessary for the elacidation and explanation of the Bible. It is the main object of the Editor to place within the reach of every Christian household appeals abstract of a work which has received the approval of those competent to express an opinion on the subject.

A copy of this work will be sent, post-paid, on receipt of the selection price by the Pubnishers.

THE ONLY FULL AND COMPLETE ACCOUNT OF GENERAL SHERMAN AND HIS GREAT ARMY YET PUBLISHED.

SHERMAN'S MARCH THROUGH THE SOUTH SKETCHES AND INCIDENTS OF HIS CAM-PAIGNS.

By Capt. David C. Conyngham,
Of the "New-York Herald."
One vol. 12mo. Frice #1 75.

One vol. 12mo. Frice $1.75.

Major General Hooker said of it: "It is the most complete and truthful work I have seen on that subject."

The Boston Journal says: "The author enjoyed favorable facilities for gathering a rich collection of facts and incidents, which he has put together in a very skillful manner. He tells the story in a way which will at once engage the attention of the reader and hold it to the close of the volume.

The Christian Intelligencer says: "The work is one of permanent value, and is likely to have a large sale."

The American Folumere says: "Major Nichols's popular work, which took up the marrative at Atlanta, and is, therefore, incomplete, has had an immense saie. But the volume before us, written by Capt. David C. Conyncham, takes up the marrative at the time when Sherman marshaled its noble army for its first forward movement in the grandest campaign ever entered upon in modern warfare."

The New York Heruld ways: "From a careful perusal of the work we are disposed to credit it as the best contribution to the history of the late war yet written. The personnel of the Generals is admirably painted. The battles of Chickmanage, Rocky Face Ridge, Reacacs, Shake Creek Gap. Dallas, Keneras, Joneshorough, Atlanta, and the storology of Fort McAllater, are brilliantly described in succession. We have had in other books some light and aketchy descriptions of the march of Sherman's army from Atlanta to the sea, but in the volume before us it is not alone the march, which is brilliantly as well as faithfully pictured that we find, but all the grantic battles that preceded it—battles which made the march possible and rendered its completion triumphant."

This is the first of a very interesting Series of Volumes et the Eithie feach one complete in itself), under the general till of the 'Word.' A little family, living in the depths of a American forest, spend so much time every day taments after dinner, under the trees) in talking over the incidents, the Sacred Story. An uncle, who has been an extensive treeler, is the chief speaker, and illustrates the discussion with uncolotes of his travels and adventures. All the children tas a part, while the aged grandmother puts in her word here an there. The author's pleasing style gives a freshness and natrainess to the conversation, that readers it very absorbing.
